"The school reminds us every day, in the unselfconscious attitudes and behavior towards one another of children representing an almost worldwide diversity of national origin, religion, creed, and color, that prejudices and discrimination are merely artifices invented by adults."

PAINT FLAKES

People is a wall, that is
A person is a wall
Starting off all young, freshly
Painted
In pink or blue.

Induction into society
Paints us more colorfully
No more the pale,
Noncommittal shades of Infancy.

Splashes of red, orange, green
Or yellow, blue and violet.
Cool or warm as we assert our individuality
While also trying to conform to the norm.

People live out their lives
Changing their coats of paint.
A fresh coat each day, or year
A coat to cover up the old paint
For people gets tired of a color,
that is,
A person gets tired of a color
And thinks a new color will rejuvenate an old soul.

Paint cracks.
Paint flakes off.
When people is too old, too tired
that is
When we are too old, too tired
When the coats are not fresh
Paint flakes off
To reveal
our true colors.

SENIOR HOUSE

HIGH HEELS AND BIRD FEATHERS

Has you ever met Ema Jane Casselberry? Well, if you hasn't you're in for a treat. Ema Jane is the head of the church choir and I can tell ya right now that nobody gets a bunch of Jehovah's Witnesses to laugh like she does. At first we thought she was crazy on account of the kind of clothes she wore. I remember the first day she walked in wearin' this long black dress with some kind of shade of purple, I forget now what you call it. Well anyways, this dress that she has on was real low cut. At least for church it was. She had on these high heel black sandal-like things that looked just the ones I wore to the beach that past Sunday only mine are in blue. I bet you can almost guess she didn't have no stockings on. Didn't shave her legs neither. Freddy always says, Freddy's my husband, that either a woman oughtta have her legs look nice and shaved or she better have stockings on to hide what she didn't go and take the time to do. Now me and Freddy don't agree too often, but when it comes to women he knows what he likes, and most of the time I agrees with him. Now gettin' back to Ema Jane, she had this hat on that looked like a bird sanctuary only these birds were dead. Alls you could see comin' from this woman's head was feathers of all shapes and sizes, and colors too. Well as if her appearance wasn't enough to catch everbody's attention she let out this sigh that was probably heard clear across all of Mobile, Alabama, and then looked at Florence Johnson and said right to her face, "Do you have a chair for me baby, to rest my Keesters 'cause I am really tired." Now I'm not one to go using foul language, but Florence Johnson is the kind of person that don't take no — from nobody. Her husband's the owner of the general store in the center of town and they's supposed to have more than the mayor. Well I was just ready to watch Florence have a fit in the first degree but to my suprise she laughted so hard that her temples were almost popping. Nobody said a word. Then Ema Jane took out a cigarette and started puffin-' away. In God's house, under his roof she was doin' this. I couldn' wait to get home and tell Freddy. Oh look, here she comes now. Why don't you stick around for a while and get a good laugh.

Teri Goldman, T2

The hot lights shown slickly on his face. His fingers tensed in anticipation of the moment they would caress the keys. The atmosphere in the room threatened to suffocate him with its oppressiveness and yet he was above it all. His mind knew the notes and the keys as if they were his entire conciousness, his very being; and many believed they were. He didn't just play the piano, he created something; an intangible feeling that left the audience dazzled. The incessant buzzing quieted as he sat down. He stared out into the audience for one brief moment, concentration and the bright lights obscuring his handsome features. He turned back to his piano and raised his hands over the keys where they seemed to flutter for an eternity, and then they came crashing down, filling the room with a great magical beauty. The audience sighted a contented sigh and settled back to let the music carry them away.

Galleries of the infinite and eternal past,
Galaxies of unimaginable futures,
A myriad of magical lands beyond
the "sight" of the senses,
Coalesce together as a massive whole
In the far reaches of the mind.

A single mind
plunging forth into the realm of infinity
Racing and passing by time itself,
Encounters living and dead worlds
Floating in colorless space.
Here the dead do live again
And the living seldom die
For here the impossible is possible
And reality unreal.

In the bewitching silence of an enchanted forest
A unicorn glides gracefully through the brush,
Merlin wields his magic staff,
Arthur reigns inside his palace
And doorways lead to other worlds

-A new, different door has opened to another dimension
Exceeding the limits of space and time

-The world of the Imagination . . .

HEY BROTHER CAN YOU SPARE A DIME

Little Annie Sue's
Shiny purple pumps
Hang on the street lamp on 42nd street
Her Daddy hung them there
Suspended in the air
Ready to fall
And crack someone's head.

Daddy hung them there
When Little Annie Sue wouldn't take
Her Sunday night stroll
They dangle there
Like a raisin in the sun
Just till Annie Sue is ready for another run.

Every morning, just about seven
When the taxis pile up near the sidewalk
Like yellow ants slowly needling up and down
the 8th avenue hill,
The purple pumps
Swing amongst the brown and black fumes.

Mirror, mirror on the wall
Who's the fairest of them all.
Little Annie Sue looks out her wired up window
Covered with grey film and
Greasy, dusty lipstick stains,
Looking out at the pumps swinging in the acid rain.

HEH HEH.
UNIS
SENIOR
PAGES

Time, time, time, see what's become of me. While I looked around for my possibilities, I was so hard to please. Look around, leaves are brown, and the sky is a hazy shade of Winter . . . S&G

Once upon a time there were two little girls (Nigel Brooke Hamster and Vivian Incubator Jones) who for six years traveled the strange (I had the strangest dream last night) and often silly (leaning sideways, falling off the footrest and gee my lower lip feels good) road of life together. Along the way they met many wierd (Sly Eyes, Woofkiss and the gang) and wonderful people. They had good times (Should we get 40 Munchkins or go for 65 this time?) and bad times (Don't look, just pretend you don't hear him) and times that they don't really remember (were you setting my bed on fire?).

Their warped sense of humour (I'm a doctor and I want my sausages) and love for the dangerous life (9 dead and they blame Marine training) got them into many twisted situations. It was through these experiences (I'll have a Joan Collins, please) that they learned about the important things in life (God, he's so gorgeous). They became cosmopolitan (Flake), multilingual (Jag ska sitta po dag), clever (Making good use of a glass jar) and even more schizophrenic (We are the Knights who say NIH. If you do not appease us, we will be forced to say NIH until you do.) They also became picky (How can you eat that? It looks like . . .) cruel (originality tests), violent (He bite me! He bite Polly!), blasé (I give him 3 and a half minutes), and mocking (bunny ears). It was all UNIS's fault. After 13 years there, what else could be expected of them? What would their lives bring? (One day my son, all this will be yours.). How would they end up? (Singing Godspell, X-mas carols and Billy Joel). No one knows for certain, but whatever it is, you can be sure that sometime, somewhere, someday, probably at Bellevue mental ward, they will meet again!! K-U-U-U-N-N-G!!!

The answer lies within so why not take a look now
kick out the Devil's sin,
pick up, pick up a good book now.

This has been a year of many changes. I know I've been through mine. There were times I felt wonderful and I soared, and times when I lost sight of my truth and felt myself floundering. I've grown, been challenged and moved to higher ground. Going to end this year in a glorious way with a renewed consciousness of our power, our majesty, and our ability to love.

When I find myself in times of trouble,
Mother Mary comes to me;
speaking words of wisdom:
" let it be."

I thank everyone who made a difference in my school life. And also those who could have made a difference.

Let it be, let it be.
Let it be, Let it be.
Whisper a word of wisdom;
" let it be."

And when the night is cloudy, there is still a light that shines on me. Shine until tomorrow;
" let it be."

So now I come to you, with open arms,
Nothing to hide, believe what I say
So here I am with open arms
Hoping you'll see what your love means to me . . .
Open arms Mizue Suito

Divestiture Leaves Ma Bell Chiefs With Billions and Billions and Billions

By DAVID P. FOLDEASY
Staff Reporter of OFF THE WALL STREET JOURNAL

EXIT 29, Kan.–The familiar Golden Arch looks like a giant telephone receiver. The fried chicken is available in four decorator motifs and three historical themes. And the cook, 46-year-old Archibald Twilly, used to be a repairman. What's fast food doing being served in a place called Reach Out and Munch Something?

This is the future for American Telephone and Telegraph – this two-week old eatery in a town called Exit 29, Kansas, a bustling prairie hamlet 75 miles west of Wichita.

Just days after signing the Justice Department antitrust agreement by which it forfeited monopoly control of its 22 local operating divisions, AT&T told its investment bankers to start sluicing the sudden cash overflow caused by divestiture – $400 billion so far – into the outright acquisition of all the major restaurant chains, including McDonald's, Burger King, A&W, Wendy's, Jack-in-the-Box, Kentucky Fried Chicken and, naturally, Taco Bell. Frozen Executives Avoid Hard Times; New Cryonics Ensure Solid Future

By ROBERT S. GREASEBURGER
Staff Reporter of OFF THE WALL STREET JOURNAL

ROCKVILLE, Md.–Thousands of recession-conscious executives are giving new meaning to the words "frozen asset."

In the face of mounting corporate failures and the recession, businessmen enthusiastic about the long-term benefits of Reagan administration policies are taking leaves of absence, many of up to five years. What's making it possible is executive cryonics, the process of freezing the executive body into a state of suspended animation that can last up to 10 years without causing any lasting physical damage. CONT. P. 26

World-Wide

The U.S. will sell $235 billion worth of armaments to the Soviet Union.
Defense Secretary Weinberger lauded the huge sale as a "huge boost" to the economy and cited the USSR as a "natural market" for U.S. weaponry.

Erik: "Go away".
Lauren K.: I'd rather not say . . .
Mariko: Lying in the caribbean drinking a cocktail.

CONTRARY TO POPULAR BELIEF:

Michael O'Neil does go to some of his first period classes. Katrin Ljungholm is not Swedish or Californian. Joselyn Ferrara, Marina Friscic, Jenny Jobrack, and Monica Caveda do not sleep with their bunny ears on. Eliane Goettle man does smile, occasionally. Leslie Scheidt does not own Bennetton stock. Lauren Alpert is n a Barbie doll. Yasmine Bleeth does not have hair on her chest. Kate Greaves is not dating Harrison Ford. Ramesh Singh does n enjoy dressing up in a wig and falsies-but Betsy Goldstein might. Aishat Yolah is registered as a student at U.N.I.S. Yvette Blanco nose isn't always brown. John Mathiason is not dating a Jr. 3 gi a Jr. 5 maybe but definately not a Jr. 3. Sarah Goffman is not dating Simon Lebon. Billy Mandeville does not look like Eddie Murphy. Max Benjamin is not a Republican anymore. Khalid Alleghany has not donated a library to every Ivy league college. Erik Knight does like some people at U.N.I.S.
